1. retrospect

founded in september 2008, the artdepot was able to present a highly varied program of exhibitions and diverse social events such as conversations with the artists, concerts, readings, book presentations, or cabarets to an interested audience in the financial year 2010.

the artdepot was conceived as a center of communications for art and culture that, apart from functioning as a gallery and organizing exhibitions, is also concerned with renting art (art2rent) and space, location scouting, producing videos as well as organizing and carrying out musical and theatrical events and readings – tasks that can be seen as core competences, not least of all because of the reinforcement of the team at the beginning of the year.

with a focus on the promotion of tyrolean artists, the center of communications for art and culture enables contemporary artists to realize any of their concepts, ideas, and modes of expression and declares itself as an experimental space for the cause of art in addition to the realization of multifaceted social programs.

4. briefly taking stock

taking a retrospective glance at the year 2010, the artdepot is more than satisfied. apart from the summer festival, or the artdepot's second birthday (which attracted more than 200 visitors to see the exhibition), respectively, highlights were the first exhibition of newcomer matthäus ritsch and the record number of visitors at the "long night of museums."

we would like to once again emphasize the cooperative project for the fifa european championship with the public screening at the marketplace innsbruck. in cooperation with dr. bella bello bitugu – coordinator of the activities of fairplay in western austria and cofounder of fare (football against racism in europe) and the department of integration of the city of innsbruck, headed by miss notburga troger, the artdepot presented "the human rights project" on the public-viewing premises at innsbruck's marketplace from june 28 to july 4. during the breaks in between games the artdepot and its exhibition concerning human rights by lukas m. hüller were regularly introduced, photographs were projected onto the screen, and the 30 articles of the human rights convention were read by radio presenter konstanze köberl. the final participation in the "weltmarkt der kulturen" can be regarded as a huge success in the context of a concerted effort at integration.

winning biennale-artist aron demetz as an exhibiting artist can be seen as an absolute highlight. another exhibition is planned for 2012.
